Where Should Grandma Live?

A few weeks ago, Democrat Nancy Pelosi made an interesting comment while opposing the GOP plan to repeal and potentially delay the Affordable Care Act. She said, "If you're senior. You know Medicaid, almost half of Medicaid is about long-term health care. You want grandma living in the guest room? You repeal the Affordable Care Act."

This was fear-mongering, but more interestingly, it appears to be a preference for senior citizens living in facilities. Today as 10,000 people become seniors every day, it might be good to bring back the mother-in-law apartment in family homes. They keep the family together. They don't isolate seniors in nursing homes. And it cost far less for everyone. What do you think?
