Doctors Feel Joy in Freedom

Wedge practices are third-party free. That means no one outside the exam room controls what happens inside the exam room. And no one requires patients to reveal pages and pages of private information before they receive care.

To celebrate the first birthday of The Wedge of Health Freedom, we conducted a survey. We asked Wedge practices to share their greatest joy in being free from outside controls. One doctor said that writing a note in the patient's chart that contains only the information necessary to care for the patient rather than checking off bullet points to get paid was a real joy. This doctor loves working for her patient, and only her patient. Find this kind of doctor at jointhewedge.com
