Big Brother Breaches and Breakdowns

How has the government-mandated electronic health record jeopardized your privacy and safety? Here are three recent examples. First, LabCorp, one of the largest medical laboratories in the world was breached in a ransomware attack so they shut it down.

Second, 1.4 million patient records at a health system in Wisconsin may have been compromised in a phishing attack. And third, the electronic health record system failed at Sutter Health in California forcing it to be shut down, leaving doctors without information on patients.
