Escape to The Wedge of Health Freedom

We launched The Wedge of Health Freedom as a place where doctors and patients could escape the intrusions, costs and restrictions of today's health care system.

For example, a 2016 study found that physician practices in four specialties spent over $15.4 billion each year to report "quality data" to government and insurers. These practices spent an average of 785 hours and $40,000 per physician per year on data reporting. Reporting adds nothing to care, takes time away from patients, increases costs, and causes physician burnout. Ask your doctor to leave the bureaucratic mess behind and join The Wedge.
