Why Are Doctors Leaving?

Americans may sense the health care system is in trouble but not fully understand why. The high costs are obvious, but what's happening below the surface to their doctors is less known. Consider today part one of my explanation.

American health care is in trouble because Congress has imposed mind-numbing reporting mandates that have turned most highly-skilled doctors into glorified data clerks. Thus, in 2016, about 48% of more than 17,000 doctors surveyed said they were preparing to leave direct patient care. Doctors are taking their skills, their minds, and their critical-thinking and walking away from medicine.

Meanwhile 10,000 baby boomers enter Medicare every day, thinking doctors will be there for them. Why is Congress not working to keep doctors in your future?
