CDC Manipulates Definition of “Vaccine”

I’ve long said the Covid-19 shot is NOT a vaccine, according to the CDC’s own definition. The CDC doesn’t like our truth-telling. In an email obtained by another group, a CDC worker said its definition is problematic and outdated and wrote, “Right-wing Covid-19 deniers are using your ‘vaccine’ definition to argue that mRNA vaccines are not vaccines.”

The CDC’s longstanding definition said a vaccine produced “immunity…protecting that person from that disease.” The CDC approved a new definition on August 31, now claiming a vaccine merely stimulates an immune response against disease. The CDC can manipulate the definition of ‘vaccine’ but that does not make the Covid shot a vaccine. If it does not protect, it’s not a vaccine.
