Be Thankful You Don't Live in Austria

Thanksgiving Day is a day to thank the Lord God Almighty for life, liberty, and bountiful blessings — even in the midst of Covid restrictions. Importantly, the Constitution of the United States is still the law of the land, as much as some would like to tear it up and others try to pretend it does not exist.

Be thankful you're not in Austria, Australia or New Zealand. Unvaccinated Austrians are under house arrest. Australians have been confined in lockdown for months. New Zealand's prime minister is creating a two-tier system based on vaccination. But in the U.S. lawsuits are flying left and right, workers of every political stripe are refusing to comply with injection mandates, and NFL star Aaron Rodgers stood against vaccine mandates and won. We have much to be thankful for, and much to fight for. May we be worthy of the battle.
