Why Did the CDC Wait 15 Months to Look for Injury?

According to a CDC document, scientists review the vaccine adverse events reporting system to look for “unusually high numbers of adverse events after a particular vaccine or a new pattern of adverse events.” Since the Covid shot began, adverse events have been piling up, but the CDC did nothing.

The CDC only began studying the data in March 2022, 15 months after the first shot and only after a letter from an attorney. In the CDC’s data, now released, are more than 700 safety signals. In the cardiovascular safety signal, there are more than 70,000 adverse events. In the neurological safety signal, there are more than 50,000 events. Why haven’t they looked until now?
