Biden Aims to Violate Conscience of Health Care Workers

On March 25, the Biden Administration submitted a proposed rule to rescind the rule that protects freedom of conscience for health care workers. The “conscience clause” rule was issued by the Trump administration in May 2019 but has never been implemented because pro-abortion and other groups successfully sued to block it.

The rule would have protected the right of doctors and nurses to refuse to participate in procedures that violate their conscience, including abortion, euthanasia, and gender reassignment surgery.

Requiring doctors and nurses to violate their conscience or be fired is one more way the Biden administration intends to turn excellent health care workers from heroes to zeros.
