Why Will Public Health Emergency Be Renewed?

The Biden Administration is holding on to control. In January 2020, HHS issued its first public health emergency for Covid. On April 16 of 2022, HHS extended it into mid-July. We're not even halfway there, but health officials have already decided that the Covid controls must continue through the summer, maybe right up to the election.

The declaration allows them to issue emergency use authorizations for drugs and vaccines that haven't been properly tested. It lets them give these to millions of people at no charge. It lets more Americans enroll in Medicaid.

The continued declaration may be all about the election, hoping for quid pro quo votes. Let's hope it doesn't work. These tyrants must be jettisoned.
