September 2, 2022

National Surveillance System in the Works

A national public health surveillance system is in the works. A new task force is working to change the way public health information is gathered and stored. “Public health information,” as defined by government, could be everything in your now-digitized medical record.

Federal officials want all public health agencies nationwide to “act as one public health community working together to predict, prevent, detect, and respond to public health threats.”

Could you be identified as a public health threat if you refused the Covid shot? The government is preparing to seize all the details of your life under the guise of public health. States can stop it. Ask your state legislators to forbid state public health agencies from complying.

“Federal Public Health Data Committee Kicks Off,” STAT Health Tech, August 18, 2022 (by email)
