Saving Family Medicine Through Direct Pay

More and more physicians are choosing to go independent and setting up their own practices. They are accepting only cash, check or credit cards. Patients love it. Patients get the full time, attention and listening ear of the doctor at an affordable price. So many people contact our office to ask where they can find this kind of doctor near them. So far there are only about 1200 direct-pay doctors, but more are coming and we’re adding them to The Wedge.

Supporters of socialized medicine are very unhappy with this trend. They say direct-pay practices will lead to a physician shortage, which is nonsense. It’s government and health plan bureaucracy, electronic health record mandates, and reporting requirements that make doctors want to leave. Direct-pay practices give them a reason to stay. Find this kind of doctor at JointheWedge.com.
