A Plan for Trump on Pre-Existing Conditions

President Trump wants to protect patients with pre-existing or known medical conditions. People with these conditions often become uninsured when they lose the affordable policies they used to have, their employer-sponsored or family coverage, or the coverage options that used to be sold to people with these known or pre-existing medical conditions.

I suggest giving people the same tax deduction employers get so that individuals and parents can buy lifetime, never-lose-it insurance policies for themselves and their children. Congress should also repeal the law that forbids the sale of affordable catastrophic indemnity insurance. And tax deductions for giving charity care to the uninsured should also be provided.

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens' Council for Health Freedom.
