Health Plans Prefer to do the Disrupting

The head of UnitedHealth Group, the nation's largest health plan, discussed his opposition to Medicare for All saying, "The wholesale disruption of American health care being discussed in some of these proposals would surely jeopardize the relationship people have with their doctors, destabilize the nation's health system, and limit the ability of clinicians to practice medicine at their best." endquote

But, this is exactly what his and other health plans are doing. They reap huge profits from disrupting the patient-doctor relationship, limiting the doctor's ability to practice at their best, and destroying the best medical system in the world. Medicare for All is just the government doing the destruction without their help—plus the end of every health plan.
