CDC Discriminates Against the Unvaccinated

Let's call a spade a spade. The government is engaged in a massive discrimination campaign. Look at the CDC's updated "guiding principles for fully vaccinated people."

The CDC says fully vaccinated people don't need masks outdoors, except in crowds. They alone can visit others without masks. They no longer need to be restricted from work even if exposed if they have no symptoms. They don't have to quarantine or engage in routine Covid-19 testing. They can travel freely without any testing required.

Well, thankfully, no one will know who is or isn't vaccinated, so expect many to go mask-free regardless of vaccination status. The CDC may intend to increase pressure for vaccine passports—or because people will go mask free, maybe this is their way to let up on their tyrannical ways while saving face.
