Ignore the Hysteria: Facts About Measles

Major media is hysterical over measles. But did you know 67 percent of this year's US cases are in New York, all are sourced in foreign countries, and no brain damage or death has occurred?

Did you know vaccinated people can still get measles, and they can spread measles? Did you know measles used to be considered a rite of passage in childhood and scientists called it a "mild disease"? It's not dangerous.

Did you know there's been only one measles-related death in the last decade, but the government has paid claims on 483 injuries and deaths from measles vaccine since 1988?

Go to JointheWedge.com if you want a doctor more likely to listen to your concerns about vaccination.
