Obamacare Has Got to Go

Twenty state attorneys general and governors have sued the federal government, claiming the Affordable Care Act is unconstitutional, and the Trump administration has wisely refused to defend the law. Democrats are trying to step in to defend it, but we’ve asked the judge to rule that they have no standing and to agree the law is unconstitutional.

Meanwhile, states are trying to cut Obamacare costs. For example, Pennsylvania discovered a state-operated exchange will cost $60 million less than relying on Healthcare.gov, the federal Obamacare exchange. The Affordable Care Act is unconstitutional and the high cost to states is just one more reason to shut it down.
