Who is Your Doctor Working For?

What happens when insurers buy physicians? Do these doctors work for the company or the patient?

These mergers are happening nationwide. When UnitedHealth Group won FTC approval to buy a large independent physician group, Reuters news service said the deal was “part of an effort by health insurers to cut costs by playing a more direct role in medical services.” Thus, health plans are planning to own and control your doctors.

“He who holds the gold makes the rules.” If you aren’t the one paying the doctor, these insurance corporations will tell doctors whether you get access to care, what care, how much, when and by whom. Welcome to the corporate version of single-payer. Find a doctor that works for you at JointheWedge.com
