Are Only Six Percent of Covid Deaths Real?

On September 9, the CDC updated their COVID-19 death data. Describing a list of medical conditions suffered by deceased Covid patients, it stated, "For 6% of the deaths, COVID-19 was the only cause mentioned." Some said this meant that only six percent of these deaths were actually from Covid-19.

From the onset, the CDC asked doctors to write Covid-19 on death certificates if the patient tested positive, even if Covid-19 was not the cause of death. The patient may have died WITH Covid-19, not FROM it. And now that we know 85 to 90 percent of confirmed Covid-19 cases may not actually be Covid-19 cases, what should Americans think? Are all these deaths actually from Covid? It's looking less and less likely.
