Lawsuit Filed Against PCR Test Author

A lawsuit has been filed in Germany against the author of a now controversial study claiming the PCR test can detect COVID-19.

One German attorney called reported infections “pure fantasy” because Germany’s PCR test uses 45 cycles. Therefore, labs are clueless about the infection rate, the attorney said because, according to biochemist Dr. Michael Yeadon, PCR tests using more than 35 cycles give a minimum of 95 percent false positives. Dr. Anthony Fauci made similar comments in July, and a New York Times study released similar findings in August.

The World Health Organization now advises laboratories to disclose cycle numbers when reporting test results to doctors.
