COVID-19 Led to “Convergence Opportunism”

Biochemist Dr. Michael Yeadon, has a PhD in respiratory pharmacology, conducted research at Pfizer, co-founded a biotech company, and is founder of a website called “Lockdown Sceptics.”

In an interview, he calls COVID-19 “the first social media pandemic.” It made fear-mongering possible. He also says, “It’s the first pandemic that’s armed and dangerous with...molecular biology.” This refers to the PCR test that’s reporting up to 90% false-positives. He doesn’t believe a conspiracy led to today’s destructive lockdowns. Instead, he thinks various groups who wanted to make money, change the way we live, and reduce carbon output saw an opportunity and took it. He calls it “convergent opportunism.”
