Buy Personal Coverage with Your Employer’s Help!

As of January 1, employers are able to help workers obtain their own coverage with pre-tax dollars. This new freedom comes from an executive order signed by President Trump. The Obama administration had prohibited these payments and fined employers $100 per DAY if they contributed to the worker’s private plan.

Trump’s executive order is good news. It lets employers pay workers cash to buy their own personal and portable coverage. Workers are not limited to whatever policy the employer picks, and if they lose their job they don’t lose their insurance. And employers don’t have to worry about picking coverage that fits the unique needs of all their workers.

Ask your employer to offer cash contributions to workers so you can buy your own personal, portable coverage.
