Tasered for Refusing to Wear a Mask

The government-mandated face mask is a serious affront to freedom. Last week, Alecia Kitts was arrested in Logan, Ohio, while sitting outside, mask-free, in the stands at her son’s seventh-grade football game. When she refused to leave the stadium, she was tasered — the video shows the officer putting the taser in the middle of her back and pulling the trigger.

Her family, including two young children, was sitting socially distanced from others in a sparsely attended section. The video shows another officer, who arrived late on the scene, also did not have a mask on, only belatedly pulling it out of her pocket and putting it on as she followed the other officers and Alecia out of the stadium. Ms. Kitts was charged with criminal trespass and now has an attorney. Is this acceptable in America?
