220 Days of Flattening the Economy

Today is 220 days since the national emergency was declared. On March 10, three days before the declaration, Dr. Anthony Fauci, at the White House, told reporters that flattening the curve of COVID-19 infection would lead to less infections and less death. No, it meant less people sick at the same time so hospitals could handle it, not less sick people.

Remember when “flatten the curve” was a 15-day stay-at-home order? That was 205 days ago in Minnesota—almost 7 months. Now, because of the extended lockdown, many hospitals have closed their doors permanently nationwide, depriving patients of care far into the future, and other hospitals are nowhere near capacity. So, what’s the real reason behind this devastating government lockdown? Who will shut down the shutdown?

“Why ‘flattening the curve’ may be the world’s best bet to slow the coronavirus,” Helen Branswell, STAT, March 11, 2020: <https://bit.ly/37dYiFm>
