Obamacare Heads to U.S. Supreme Court

Welcome to the Health Freedom Minute. This is Twila Brase, president of Citizens' Council for Health Freedom.

Obamacare is headed to the U.S. Supreme Court. As you may recall, the 11th Circuit Court ruled against the Administration in the lawsuit filed by the State of Florida and joined by 25 other states. Just three judges heard and ruled on the case. The Obama administration could have appealed to that court, but last week the Justice Dept. announced that it would appeal directly to the U.S. Supreme Court.

This decision means that the U.S. Supreme Court could decide to hear and rule on the constitutionality of the individual mandate to buy health insurance before the 2012 presidential election. Former New York Lt Gov. Betsy McCaughey, whose Wall Street Journal commentaries exposed HillaryCare and Obamacare, tells Newsmax that there’s only a 50 percent chance the law will be ruled unconstitutional.
