Vaccination Focus Hides Other Protective Options

The news media, the politicians, and government bureaucrats are singularly focused on getting everyone vaccinated as though this were the only option to protect against Covid-19. There is little talk about how prevention strategies like Vitamin D, or early treatment for Covid-19, like Ivermectin, often works to stop infection or limit the illness. Vaccination proponents are pushing vaccination, despite the side effects, the reported deaths, and the lack of knowledge about the long-term effects.

Virus variants are the other frequent topic, along with an increase in cases. However, hospitalizations and deaths, the only statistics that really matter, are way down. This too is rarely mentioned. Meanwhile people infected with the more contagious United Kingdom variant did not experience more severe symptoms and were not at higher risk of death.

“U.K. variant isn’t linked to more disease or death, study finds,” Denise Chow, NBC, April 12, 2021: <https://nbcnews.to/3dqd4M5>
