“You're Fired” Won't Work in Washington

Right now, I am in Florida where I was invited to speak to physicians about The Wedge of Health Freedom at two different events. I’ll report back once I return. Meanwhile, I read an interesting article in Commentary magazine called, “Will There Be An Internal Revolt Against Trump?”

Federal career officials are under lifetime tenure rules – technically known as “civil-service protections.” They make it exceedingly difficult to fire even those that are obstinate and uncooperative, writes Tevi Troy, a former George W. Bush team member. Well, there’s something very wrong about this, but I’ll set it aside for the moment. What’s clear is President Trump has his work cut out for him. “You’re fired!” will simply not work in Washington.
