Flat-Rate Prices For Care

Prices are not a mystery at the grocery store. And if you plan to take a flight, you go online, check out the prices, click a few buttons and the purchase is made. So what’s wrong with health care? The problem is you don’t pay the bill. So you usually don’t ask for prices and they don’t tell. And because it’s been this way for so long, when you do ask, they often don’t know.

Well, how willing would you be to pay a flat-rate price for care? Some radiologists in Indianapolis are offering flat-rate prices for CT scans, X-rays, and MRIs. They still accept insurance, so they can’t yet be on The Wedge, but an MRI facility in Oregon just joined The Wedge. It offers MRIs for a flat cash rate: $599.
