Let's Grow Health Sharing

A recent newsletter from Samaritan Ministries shows just how quickly health sharing is growing. The president of the ministry writes that it started last year with more than 39,000 member households and now, one year later there are more than 53,000 households that are members of Samaritan.

In January of last year, members were sharing $10 million dollars in medical expenses every month, but today, they're sharing $15 million every month. Plus, they just purchased another office building to accommodate the rapid growth in membership. State insurance commissioners would like to shut down health sharing and force people to buy insurance. Let’s grow these groups so big they can't be shut down.
