Obamacare’s Unfulfilled Promise

We were promised many choices of affordable coverage on the Obamacare exchange. But that was never going to happen because the exchanges were created to capture the premiums of the healthy to cover the high costs of people with uninsurable pre-existing conditions. That’s why health plans demanded we all be forced to buy coverage so there would be enough money to cover the costs of the uninsurable.

But Americans opted out of un-affordable coverage, many paying the fine to avoid monthly health plan confiscation of their wages. Without enough cash from the healthy, health plans have been fleeing the exchanges. Today, 51 percent of all counties in America have only one health plan offering coverage on the exchange. Promises, promises.
