Nurses Protest Zuckerberg Name

Mark Zuckerberg has been under fire for Facebook’s data practices. First Cambridge Analytica acquired data that may have impacted the 2016 election. Then their plan to secure patient data from a hospital for a data-matching research project was exposed. But the fire continues.

Now nurses at the Zuckerberg San Francisco General Hospital are protesting his name. The hospital was renamed after the Zuckerbergs gave the hospital a $75 million gift. But the nurses say the name makes patients wary. It makes patients wonder whether their privacy is protected at the hospital. One protesting nurse used a roll of blue tape to tape over his name on the hospital’s welcome sign.
