Feds Plan Access to Your Medical Date Through...

If you’ve never worried about Obama’s 2009 mandate that imposed computerized medical records on Americans, it’s time to begin. I guess, bottom line, I’d like you to realize that the electronic health record was never about improving patient care – just ask any doctor – it was always about establishing government access to your private data and controlling the medical decisions of doctors.

Three weeks ago, an article was published on the plans of the CDC to collect real-time patient data from electronic medical records by moving to ‘the cloud’ and accessing it online. They’ve hired five private sector experts in software design and data science to make it happen.

“CDC plans to improve public health data collection by moving to the cloud and accessing EHRs,” Evan Sweeney, FierceHealthcare, June 14, 2017.
