Even Liberals Have Reasons for Repeal

Some liberals would prefer that Obamacare be fully repealed rather than accept the GOP’s partial repeal.

One editor at ThinkProgress says repealing Obamacare’s Medicaid expansion, tax credits and individual mandate would, and I quote, “be worse for Americans in the individual health insurance market than a total repeal of the law. That’s because the law’s provision protecting people with preexisting health conditions cannot operate without the tax credits and the individual mandate.”

He quotes an Urban Institute report which says an additional 7.3 million people will be uninsured because of the near collapse of the individual market. So, I guess even liberals can find reasons to repeal Obamacare.

“Here’s how many people could die every year if Obamacare is repealed,” [sic]
