August 15, 2018

How Low Can Prices Go?

A physician at Atlas MD, a direct primary care (or DPC) practice in Kansas, used Twitter to show how low a CT scan could go for his patients. The local hospital quoted his patient a $6,000 cash price for a CT scan of the abdomen and pelvis.

But the patient who called his office looking for a better price was told: “We can get a scan for you today for $200.” This doctor charges his patients $50 to $100 a month for primary care services. Thus, with the $5,800 in savings for this CT scan his patient could pay for fifty-eight months of care, or nearly five more years. Find this kind of practice at JointheWedge.com.

@AtlasMD, Dr. Josh, AtlasMD, Twitter, July 31, 2018:
https://twitter.com/AtlasMD/status/1024322556449443840

Monthly Membership Fees, Atlas MD:
https://atlas.md/wichita/our-fees/

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

The Health Freedom Minute is now heard in 47 states:
Mornings M-Th at AM1280 (The Patriot) in MN and 91.5 AM WHKC (FreedomFM) in OH, aftersnoons on American Family Radio, and daily on the CSN network and Bott Radio Network.