August 25, 2017

Nipping Life in the Bud

Prenatal testing in Iceland is eliminating Down’s syndrome babies. This is eugenics. Now consider America, where non-invasive pregnancy testing is a prenatal screening method. Ironically the acronym is N-I-P-T, or nipped. Consider 37-year old pediatric nurse Erin Acosta who used NIPT to screen for Down’s syndrome.

The results said her pre-born baby girl was positive for Turner syndrome, which can cause intellectual disability. But to avoid any possibility of miscarriage, Erin refused confirmatory tests, and she cried a lot. Months later, her baby was born perfectly normal. The test was a false positive. What if she’d aborted her little girl?

“Prenatal testing is about to make being pregnant a lot more stressful,” Kat McGowan, Quartz Media, March 25, 2016.

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.

The Health Freedom Minute is now heard in 47 states:
Mornings M-Th at AM1280 (The Patriot) in MN and 91.5 AM WHKC (FreedomFM) in OH, afternoons on American Family Radio, and daily on the CSN network and Bott Radio Network.