Find Patient Privacy in The WEDGE

HIPAA does not protect your privacy. It opens wide your medical records and threatens your freedom. In my interview last week on Fox News’ Special Report with Bret Baier, I said 2.2 million entities can access your data if those holding it choose to share it.

A survey of 4,000 people found that 86 percent are willing to share their medical data with physicians. But is that just their physician or all physicians? Willingness to share goes downhill after that. To health insurers, 58 percent; to researchers, 44 percent; to government, 13 percent. Yet HIPAA allows all that sharing with no consent. Find a doctor in The Wedge of Health Freedom, where patient privacy is protected. JointheWedge.com
