October 18, 2018

Who Wants Affordable REAL insurance?

Remember when medical insurance was an affordable policy you purchased and forgot about unless you had a catastrophe? That was real insurance. It protected you from the financial ruin of a major medical disaster. Other medical expenses were affordable and paid in cash.

This year, the average employer-sponsored family plan costs nearly $20,000, and the average individual plan cost almost $7,000. And that’s before the cost of deductibles. Premium costs are shifting more and more of worker’s wages to profitable health plans. Premiums rose twice as fast as worker’s earnings and three times as fast as inflation in the past 10 years. Wouldn’t you like an affordable real medical insurance plan again?

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.