October 1, 2014

GAO Says Poor Data Security in Healthcare.gov Website

Think twice before you enroll in Obamacare. That includes the state-based exchanges, like MNSure and Covered California. The federal GAO says there’s little data security built in. The report says, “weaknesses exist that put these systems and the sensitive personal information they contain at risk.”

The GAO says the government never assessed privacy risks associated with personally-identifiable information. And they used draft data agreements that were never approved. In short, they moved forward last October 1 without end-to-end security testing because enrolling people in Obamacare was considered more important to the Obama administration than protecting them.

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens’ Council for Health Freedom.