Trump Makes Big Move Against Obamacare

The Trump administration is actively targeting the Affordable Care Act. On October 22, it issued new guidance giving states the freedom to use waivers approved by the federal government to “move their insurance markets away from the one-size-fits-all rules and regulations imposed by” Obamacare. It adds the new Association Health Plans and the Short-Term, Limited-Duration policies that the Obama administration restricted.

What this does for you is that states can offer policies that are exempt from many of the law’s costly requirements and restrictive limits. It means more choices and affordability. The Obama administration issued only eight waivers. The Trump administration has just opened the door and welcomed the waivers to walk in.
