The Three Year Ruse

The Secretary of HHS claims premium increases will affect a minority of the 10.5 million people on the exchange. True, but that’s because nearly 85 percent have most of their premium paid for by taxpayers.

But another 11 million people buy their coverage off the exchange. They must pay not only the taxes that cover people on the exchange but the entire increase for their own insurance without any subsidies. In short, it’s a double dip into their pocketbooks.

She also blames insurers for not pricing their plans at the appropriate rate, but that was by design. The law provided billions to health plans for the first three years so that they would not raise their prices to cover the high cost of people with pre-existing conditions. Only now, three years later, is the ruse and the true cost of Obamacare unveiled.
