November 18, 2013

Does Obama Think He's King?

On the day before the US House voted to let you keep your health plan, President Obama claimed that he could change Obamacare at will. He said state insurance commissioners can let health plans reinstitute the cancelled health insurance policies if health plans agree to do so.

This executive action is not legal. Obamacare requires the cancellations. The President cannot change Obamacare without an act of Congress. Congress writes the law. The president executes it. The president’s attempt to make up new law as it suits him is a political act; an attempt to help Democrats win in next year’s election. After that, he’ll be happy to permanently cancel the health plan you like.