Mr. Trump Our Deregulator-in-Chief

President Obama loved regulations. In 2016, the Federal Register, which publishes federal regulations, issued a historic nearly 96,000 pages of these rules. Of the 10 all-time high annual page counts, seven occurred during the Obama administration.

But now the Trump administration is in charge. One of President Trump’s first actions was to freeze all pending regulations. In addition, 29 executive actions, including executive orders from Mr. Trump or directives from his White House have reduced regulatory requirements. In turn, federal agencies have issued 100 additional directives to end or reduce regulations. Mr. Trump has become our Chief Deregulator!
