The Dangerous Illiteracy of Millennials

Thanksgiving is right around the corner, but a recent survey shows that Millennials, the group of young Americans born from 1982 to 2004, don’t think American freedom is something to give thanks for.

The 2017 Annual Report on U.S. Attitudes Toward Socialism, published by the Victims of Communism Memorial Foundation, found 58 percent of Millennials support socialism, communism or fascism. The director of the foundation says this generation’s turn away from capitalism “highlights widespread historical illiteracy in American society regarding socialism and . . . [the] genocide, destruction and misery caused by communism.” That includes socialized medicine.
