November 7, 2011

Fatty Foods Fund France

Welcome to the Health Freedom Minute. This is Twila Brase, president of Citizens' Council for Health Freedom.

Denmark became the first country in the world to tax fatty foods, and right on its heels came France. Chips, burgers, and soda are all going to be heavily taxed.

According to Denmark’s Confederation of Industries, the fat tax will add 12 cents to a bag of chips, 39 cents to the cost of butter, and 40 cents to a hamburger.

France says the fat tax is meant to curb the obesity problem, but the country plans to raise $150 million from the sale of soda pop.

Rather than shrinking the waist of the French people, it looks like France is padding its own coffers, fleecing the public…and getting rich off fatty food.

Join us on Thursday for our annual event titled “The Way Back to Liberty.” Sign up at healthfreedomminute.net.

“Fat Tax Spreading: France Follows in Denmark’s Footsteps.” Dan Evon, Inquisitr, October 6, 2011.

The Health Freedom Minute is heard on 159 stations in 37 states, including afternoons on American Family Radio.