Tell Congress No Bailout for Insurers

UnitedHealth Group, the nation’s largest health plan, has threatened to exit Obamacare exchanges at the end of 2016, when they expect to have $500 million in losses. Obamacare requires payments to health plans that lose money. Last year $2.9 billion in losses were reported but the program had less than $400 million on hand.

Insurers knew they’d lose money, but participated because Obama promised all their loses would be covered for three years. When they weren’t covered, Obama planned to bail them out using other taxpayer dollars, but Republicans prohibited the bailout. UnitedHealth is now pressuring Congress to hand over the cash. Call Congress and say, “No bailouts for insurers.”
