Doctors As Government Data Clerks

Dr. Jeffrey Singer MD at the Cato Institute wrote a great review of my new book “Big Brother in the Exam Room.” As a practicing physician, he’s been frustrated with the government’s electronic health record mandate. Calling it a “manifestation of central planning” he says many doctors are leaving the practice of medicine to escape the surveillance system.

He concludes by writing that “Big Brother in the Exam Room is the first book to catalog in meticulous detail the dangerous ways in which health information technology is being weaponized against us all. Everyone should read it.” I agree. Find it at BigBrotherintheExamRoom.com BigBrotherintheExamRoom.com
