Health Sharing Instead of Insurance

Open enrollment nationwide ends on January 31. But maybe you’d like to avoid it altogether. So, let me suggest health-sharing as an option. Even though health sharing is not insurance, if you join a health sharing group, you’re exempt from the Obamacare penalty. Health sharing organizations are essentially cooperatives.

Members agree to fund the medical expenses of other members. It’s a voluntary association. There’s the added benefit of cost-consciousness through cash payments and consideration for other members. A list with links to the groups, such as Samaritan Ministries, can be found on our home page at cchfreedom.org. That’s cchfreedom.org. Just search for medical or health sharing.
