'Twas the Night of Repeal

'Twas the night of repeal, when all through the House, No one in Congress was stirring, not a shoe or a blouse.
The bill was prepared, the plan to erase, every word of the law,
Leaving not even one Obamacare rule in place.
But the Chamber was tense; the Congressmen poised
To take action as soon as they silenced the noise.

For the ones who loved socialism were an unhappy lot
Resisting the plan of the patriots, they called it a plot.
They rallied their troops, they stood talking for hours, but
They didn't have the votes so they didn't have the power.
When the gavel came down, there arose such a clatter,
But the patriots rejoiced. It was the end of the matter.
So believe it my friends, and let's make it come true.
Health freedom for me and health freedom for you!
Merry Christmas!

Presented daily by Twila Brase, President, Citizens' Council for Health Freedom.
