Obamacare Exchange Funding Disappears

Today is a great day for people who oppose Obamacare and government-run health care. Today all federal funding for Obamacare’s state exchanges disappears. By law, exchanges must be self-sustaining starting tomorrow. Over the past two weeks the Obama administration has rushed to dole out the last $272 million dollars to exchanges.

California’s exchange, for example, costs around $300 million each year. States can do whatever they want to raise the money, but they must do it on their own. This could mean new fees or new state taxes, but many states must have balanced budgets. It could even mean bake sales and lemonade stands. Or they could just shut it down.
