Think Before You Answer Doctor's Gun Question

One of President Obama’s executive orders on guns says Obamacare doesn’t prohibit doctors from asking their patients about guns in their homes. If this is true, why did he have to issue an executive order? I have put the firearm section of Obamacare on my Facebook page. It’s not very long and it’s easy to read.

In short, the Secretary of HHS can’t collect information on gun or ammunition ownership, possession, use or storage—and you can’t be forced under Obamacare to disclose this information. However, under HIPAA the Secretary has access to everyone’s medical records. So think carefully before you answer any questions.